Weekend Bachelor of Science in Nursing (BSN)

Change Careers with our Weekend BSN Program

If you hold a bachelor's degree in another field but want to become a nurse, GMercyU's Weekend BSN program allows you to earn your nursing degree in as few as three years - in a way that fits your life. Courses are conveniently offered on Saturdays and Sundays, and some Friday evenings. The program also includes some online summer courses.

Why Pursue Your BSN?

A Bachelor of Science in Nursing is the standard for entry-level nursing positions today, and is a typical prerequisite for work in a hospital setting. According to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, nursing careers that require a BSN degree will increase 15% on average by 2026. Our aging population also means more job opportunities for nurses who want to make a difference in people's lives.

Become the Nurse You're Meant to Be... In a Way That Fits Your Life

With GMercyU's Weekend BSN program, you will reap all the benefits of completing a renowned nursing program without disrupting your daily work or home schedule. Our program offers state-of-the-art facilities and first-rate clinical experiences that develop the skills you need to provide exceptional patient care. Here, you will find:

- Our SIM Family - sophisticated simulation mannequins that let you practice techniques before performing them on real patients
- Advanced Video System (AVS) replay for reflection and improved confidence
- 200+ regional health care affiliations, including the Children's Hospital of Philadelphia (CHOP), Doylestown Hospital, and Abington Memorial Hospital, among others

Accreditation

In addition to the University's regional accreditation, our nursing programs are accredited by the Commission on Collegiate Nursing Education.
